ORBITA™

The "Orbita" collection stems from the desire to create highly representative tables by attributing the poetic idea of form to functionality. The "Eclittica" table, without planets, leaves the sun as the sole protagonist. "Allineamenti" reinterprets one of the rare configurations in the sky, when all the planets find themselves arranged along an imaginary line.

The basic concept is the unavoidable merging of form and decoration, that arose from the idea that the elliptical shape of the crystal surface outlines the orbit of the planets around the Sun. The whole top is in stratified crystal and beveled in the lower part, decorated with two-grained golden powders and variegated metal leaves to represent the planets of the solar system. At the base, there is an internally lit truncated cone, covered in gold-colored leaf to symbolize the Sun, while on the outer perimeter there is a pillar that seems to come out of the surface.

Various graphics have been developed for "Eclittica": tones that recall the celestial darkness illuminated by a dusting of fine golden powder or the colour white, which emphasizes the intensity of the light emanating from the base (Sun). The variants of "Orbita" are expressed in the Luna Nera, Luna Bianca and Luna Rossa concepts, with the latter also offering the possibility of representing the astral position on any date.

*Here today, tomorrow elsewhere.
Always in motion. A voyage that returns once more to the beginning.*

Dancing together, in perfect asynchronicity. Around the core, so many identities caressed by the golden rays. Surrounded by darkness.
